

RESIDENT OF THE MONTH

Through his residency training, Dr. Lam has excelled in all six core ACGME competencies. For example, while serving as a third year senior during his recent inpatient Family Medicine Service rotation he facilitated guidance, teaching and organization for the team, while also allowing his second year senior to grow into her own role. In the outpatient Family Medicine Clinic, he has seen multiple patients who were unable to schedule with their usual attending physician. Many of these patients have given Dr. Lam excellent reviews and implored us to encourage him to remain in Las Cruces after graduation. We sincerely hope that he does!

RESIDENT OF THE MONTH

During her residency training, Dr. Sultana has always been strong in the areas of professionalism and practice-based learning and improvement. In addition, she has grown tremendously in the areas of medical knowledge, patient care and communication. Thanks to her development in these areas, she has also grown tremendously as a second year senior on the inpatient Family Medicine Service. In addition, her confidence in the outpatient setting is also apparent, as she has continued to develop thorough assessments and plans for her patients. We look forward to her continued growth as a second year resident!

RESIDENT OF THE MONTH

During her intern year, Dr. Sharma has demonstrated excellence in the areas of medical knowledge, patient care, professionalism, and interpersonal skills and communication. For example, during her recent inpatient Pediatrics rotation, she developed thoughtful assessments and plans for her patients. She also did an outstanding job of talking to patients and their parents about their plans of care. In addition, Dr. Sharma asked insightful questions about Obstetric and Pediatric care that facilitated her own learning as well as the learning of the team overall. We look forward to working with her for another two years!
